

This is an example of how your measurement drawing should look. Note how distances are measured in inches and how the length of individual items, such as windows or doors, are defined individually. Use vertical lines to show where each measurement begins and ends.

